

CORE VALUES

We are driven by the Bible.

The Bible is the authority over all our beliefs and practices. It's sufficient for the Christian life and the church's ministry, which means every decision, sermon, and ministry is anchored in God's Word.

We are shaped by the gospel.

We never outgrow the gospel but grow through it. The gospel motivates and empowers our thoughts, desires, and actions. We want people to experience the grace and truth of Jesus in everything we do.

We are known and embraced.

We desire for every person to feel welcomed in our church and find a place to belong and be known. God invites us to come as we are but not to stay stagnant. Because God wove us into a spiritual family, we want everyone invested in relationships where we can serve one another, encourage growth, and provide accountability.

We are united in diversity.

We seek to walk together in the biblical unity and oneness Jesus purchased for his Church. We rejoice in our unity through Christ and celebrate God's diversity in our church in different ethnicities and skin colors, ages and life-stages, cultures, and genders as men and women. Within the framework of sound doctrine and holy living, we display humility and guard against division in our relationships and ministry practices.

We are participants not spectators.

The church is not a crowd, but a congregation. Christians are called to sacrificially serve others and faithfully steward their God-given time, treasures, and talents by engaging in Christ's church and mission. Every member should be a contributor not just a consumer.

We are sent and sending.

Jesus not only saves us but sends us. We make disciples and join Christ's mission to multiply disciple-makers locally and globally. The whole church is called to discipleship and evangelism to make, mature, and multiply disciples of Jesus.
